Occupational Programs

An "occupational program" is one that prepares a student for employment or job advancement. Occupational programs can be of any length, from a 40-hour program to a two-year program. The term "short program" is used to describe a program that is less than two years in length.

Occupational programs are designed to provide students with the knowledge and skills necessary to enter a specific occupation or industry. These programs are often offered as part of a school's curriculum and may include hands-on training and internships.

Occupational programs can be found in a variety of fields, including healthcare, technology, manufacturing, and business.

These programs are an important part of a student's education and can help them gain valuable experience and skills that will be useful in their future careers.

Occupational programs are also an excellent way for students to explore different career options and discover their interests.

By participating in an occupational program, students can gain practical experience and develop the skills and knowledge needed to succeed in a specific occupation or industry.
